Beth Kolman
Head of Employee Engagement & Community Impact

National Volunteer Month 2026 was an inspiring display of what Infoscions can achieve together. Throughout April, volunteers across hubs, large offices and subsidiary locations rolled up their sleeves to support education, food insecurity, environmental sustainability, animal welfare, and community well-being, while making a real difference where it mattered most.

I'm excited to share that Richardson, TX is the Winner of the National Volunteer Month Challenge! This back-to-back recognition reflects a strong culture of service, steady participation throughout the month, and local leadership that makes volunteering accessible and energizing. Richardson's approach offers ideas and inspiration that other cities can build upon as we continue growing our collective impact.

A special thank you to our Richardson CSR Champions, Jeff Mosier and Charu Agarwal, whose enthusiasm, coordination, and commitment turned great ideas into meaningful action. Their leadership played a key role in bringing our volunteer efforts to life. A huge shout out to the other offices who made a difference in their communities during the month of April, the competition was very close this year!

To help build on the momentum of National Volunteer Month, we're excited to announce the upcoming launch of the InfyCares platform, which will make it even easier for Infoscions to discover, participate in, and track volunteer opportunities throughout the year. We look forward to carrying this energy forward and, with your help, continuing to grow our Infosys Foundation USA volunteer program.

Coming Up! Launch of the InfyCares platform

The InfyCares platform, powered by Infosys Foundation USA, is a digital hub that enables employee volunteers to discover, participate in, and track volunteer and community engagement opportunities. It streamlines corporate social responsibility efforts by connecting Infoscions with meaningful service initiatives, while capturing impact and fostering a culture of giving back.
